

Contracts and Project Development

Brazil Law Firm of the Year by Chambers & Partners 2020

Mattos Filho provides legal advice in all aspects of the development of infrastructure projects and contracts law, including transactional issues, environmental law, labor, corporate, antitrust and litigation matters, as well as financing, insurance, compliance with government rules and conflict resolution.

Services include drafting and negotiating different types of contracts, including EPCs, O&Ms, turnkey equipment supply, alliance agreements, distribution, purchase and sale contracts, guaranteed maximum price, design contracts, engineering and construction contracts, management (EPCMs), offtake agreements, shipbuilding and offshore contracts, take or pay contracts, subcontracts and contracts for the supply of goods and services related to the main industrial and infrastructure sectors, such as energy (hydroelectric, biomass, gas-to-power, thermal, wind and solar), oil and gas (e.g. construction, chartering and operation of FPSOs, DRUs, platforms and support vessels, gas supply contracts, ship or pay, etc.), logistics (e.g. highways, ports, airports, urban mobility, subways and railways) and sanitation.

We also provide assistance in the management of risks and claims related to complex contracts and the development of projects, including consultancy during the pre-litigation phase (preparation of notifications, counter-notifications, amendments, negotiation of claims and settlement agreements) and representation in litigation, including all alternative dispute resolution methods, such as dispute boards, mediation, negotiation and arbitration.
